UNSW is dining plastic free

UNSW is committed to reducing our harmful impact on the environment and conserving our planet's resources, which is why we're saying goodbye to single-use plastic across all campus dining.

GOING, GOING, GONE

Of the 300 million tonnes of plastic produced each year, 50% is single-use.

This year, UNSW is taking a step towards a campus with less waste and less plastic by introducing Plastic Free Dining.

From 2021 onwards every food outlet across campus will offer dine-in options, use compostable takeaway packaging and accept BYO containers so that you can eat good and feel good.

How can you support this initiative?

Bring your own utensils, cup, bottle and food container.

Bring your own utensils, cup, bottle and food container.

Put it in the right bin. All campus food packaging and food scraps go into the burgundy bin, drink containers go in the white bin and everything else goes in the red bin.
